Rockwell Automation Training at Rexel

As an Authorized Rockwell Distributor, Rexel is dedicated to offering complete solutions. Providing product and programs is only part of our on-going support of our customers and their businesses. Rockwell Automation training programs are only available through Authorized Rockwell Distributors. Classes are specific to Rockwell products and are hands-on with demo equipment to maximize the learning experience.

Our schedule of certified Rockwell courses provides education related to automation control, process and communication in industrial applications. Attendees will learn how to program, troubleshoot, setup and design industrial automation and process applications. They will also leave with improved automation programming knowledge, an understanding of process application and data collection and information on how to set and maintain an industrial network for communications. These courses have been selected to reach engineers, technicians and maintenance personnel and teach the most current system by subject matter experts.

In addition to scheduled in-person training, Rexel and Rockwell offer additional training opportunities, such as webinars and custom courses. For more information visit:
